

BIOME CLUSTER AND LEYS

A convergence of leys, or radiance of leys, depending on one perspective, exists at the center of the North American tectonic plate. These leys carry memories and destinies through this center to and from the Biomes of the continent. These lines and circles demonstrate a convergence of histories and memories that spin out as consequences across the land. ALS sites (red stars) punctuate this map and can be seen as armatures cranking an engine of history and karmic consequences.

Expanding the rings from its center and doubling with each expansion creates a harmonic radiance from the center of the North American Tectonic Plate. The next ring, beyond illustrated, curves along the west coast of Mexico and California, encompassing the whole of this tectonic plate. The successive ring expansion draws a circle through Hawaii and Western Europe. These expansions suggest that the collective unresolved memories encompassed by these rings could potentially be resolved within the core of the continent and the convergence of leys in New England.

The preponderance of phi ratio based ley sequences radiating from and associated with this center would imply that employing this sacred proportion could be utilized to generate a morphogenetic field of health to organismic biology.
